

Privacy Policy

The Sales Collective is committed to respecting its clients and partners privacy and protecting personally identifiable information (PII) it collects or maintains on behalf of its clients and partners. The Sales Collective is certified with the U.S. Department of Commerce's Safe Harbor Program and adheres to U.S.-EU Safe Harbor framework principles for the protection of PII transferred from the EU to The Sales Collective's data processing locations.

Scope

This privacy policy sets forth the principles that The Sales Collective adheres to with regards to the collection, protection and online and offline transfer of PII processed by The Sales Collective.

Personally Identifiable Information (PII) – Personally identifiable information is information about you that can reasonably be used to identify you as a natural person, such as your name, address, or email address. Personally identifiable information does not include information that has been anonymized, reported in the aggregate, or publicly available that has not been combined with non-public personal information.

Privacy Principles

Information Collection – The Sales Collective only collects PII and demographic information that you choose to provide us via our website (thesalescollective.com). We may use cookies to track your web use and enable access to various features in our website and PII may be stored in these cookies. Most computer users have the option of setting their computer preferences to not accept any cookies. If users select this option, however, they may not be able to log in to our customer portal (thesalescollective.com).

Any PII contained within a cookie will be treated with the same level of protection as other PII collected and maintained by The Sales Collective.

The Sales Collective also receives, stores and processes PII provided by its clients and partners both online and offline.

Information Storage and Processing – By providing information via our website or any The Sales Collective service, you consent to the storage and processing of your information. We may use and process your PII for the purpose(s) for which it was provided or as otherwise required to provide The Sales Collective services. When legally required, The Sales Collective will provide both notice of our intent to process your PII and choice to opt-out of future processing of such information. The Sales Collective also processes PII on behalf of and as instructed by clients and partners. We do not own, control or have the right to disclose or modify such information. The Sales Collective does not disclose PII provided to us by our clients and partners except at their direction. .

Information Disclosure and Transfer – The Sales Collective does not share, rent, sell or exchange PII submitted via our website, unless we are ordered by a court, otherwise required by law or have a good faith belief access, preservation or disclosure of such information is reasonably necessary to protect the rights, property or safety of The Sales Collective, its clients, partners, website users or the public. PII submitted to us is only available to employees or agents we have determined reasonably need to access it in order to provide services to you or carry out the purpose(s) for which it was collected. The Sales Collective will only transfer PII to a third party where the third party has provided assurance that it will provide at least the same level of security and protection as prescribed by this privacy policy.

Information Integrity and Security – The Sales Collective has implemented physical, procedural, and technical safeguards to prevent unauthorized access to or disclosure of PII, to protect data accuracy, and to ensure appropriate use of such information, whether in electronic or hard copy form.

Accessing and Updating Personal Information – If you wish to exercise access rights concerning your personal information you provided to The Sales Collective, please contact us at info@thesalescollective.com. To the extent that access rights pertain to data that The Sales Collective does not own or have the right to disclose or modify, The Sales Collective will make a reasonable effort to identify and notify the relevant data owner of your request.

Enforcement and Dispute Resolution – The Sales Collective utilizes the self-assessment approach to assure compliance with this privacy policy, and regularly consults this privacy policy to verify it is accurate, comprehensive, and conforms to safe harbor privacy principles. If you feel that The Sales Collective is not abiding by this privacy policy or is not in compliance with the E.U. safe harbor privacy principles please contact us via a method provided under Contact Information below. If your concern is not resolved by The Sales Collective, you may report your concern to the relevant E.U. Data Protection Authority (DPA). By voluntarily certifying with the U.S. Department of Commerce’s Safe Harbor Program The Sales Collective has made itself subject to the program’s dispute resolution, enforcement and sanctioning powers and has agreed to comply with orders regarding the processing of PII.

Children – The Sales Collective’s website is not intended for and should not be used by children under 13 years old. Please inform us if you are aware of any PII associated with a child entered via The Sales Collective’s website so we may delete it .

Updates to the Privacy Policy – Please note that this privacy policy may change from time to time. Such changes are effective upon posting and will be communicated on our website under the privacy policy section.

Links to Other Websites – The Sales Collective’s website may present links for access to other websites. Please be aware we are not responsible for the content or privacy practices of those websites. We encourage you to carefully review the privacy policy of each website you visit.

Contact Information – If you have any comments or questions about our privacy practices, please contact us.